Admissions to the DO School work on a need-blind basis. This means selection decisions are made regardless of an applicant's financial situation and scholarships are available to those who are accepted onto the Entrepreneurship for Good Program but cannot raise enough money by themselves to cover the costs of participating in the program.

If you need financial aid to cover the tuition fee, there is a separate form in the application process that you can fill out. If you are accepted you will then automatically receive an individualized partial or full financial aid offer. We will also be able to supply a limited number of travel stipends to applicants who can demonstrate that they need additional support. Our financial aid will be based on your personal needs, however, we expect all candidates to demonstrate entrepreneurial spirit and actively contribute to part of their own costs through their own fundraising activities.

You can apply by filling out the additional financial aid form during the application process. If you are accepted onto the program a financial aid offer will be made based on your individual financial circumstances. We expect all candidates to demonstrate entrepreneurial spirit and actively contribute to part of their own costs through their own fundraising activities.

During the Implementation Phase, all Fellows are expected to cover their own living expenses in their home countries. Small bursaries are available for those who lack the means to go online in order to participate in the online learning component. Applications for internet bursaries take place after the successful completion of the Incubation Phase.
